Dr. Christian McWhirter, Lincoln Historian at the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library Museum, will be our speaker. The title of his program is: "Who Freed the Slaves?"

For generations Abraham Lincoln has been heralded as the "Great Emancipator." But for just as long, debates have raged over how exactly the institution of slavery ended in America and who delivered the killing blow. This talk will examine the competing points of view on emancipation and consider Lincoln's actions in the broader context of the American Civil War and anti-slavery movement.

Dinner Meeting Reservation Policy

The following is our Civil War Round Table's reservation policy:

- A reservation is required in order to attend the dinner meeting. Anyone who attends without a dinner reservation may not be seated, depending on the number of possible no-shows.
- Reservations are required by 12:00 noon on the Wednesday prior to the dinner meeting, in order to ensure that Milburn Country Club has an accurate count for meal preparation and staffing. To make a reservation, please contact our treasurer Susan Keipp at 816-333-0025 or by email at skeipp@kc.rr.com
- The cost of a dinner is $32.00 per person. If you make a reservation, but are not able to attend the dinner meeting for any reason, you must contact Susan Keipp by either phone or e-mail prior to the reservation deadline to cancel. Meals are prepared based on reservations and the Round Table must pay for meals whether or not they are served. You could be responsible for your meal if you made a reservation, did not attend, and did not cancel before the deadline.

An Important Message From Our President

Dear Members of the Round Table,

It is really important that reservations are made if you are going to attend the monthly meeting. If someone attends the meeting without a reservation, it causes the staff of the Milburn Country Club to scramble, not only to set up extra seating, but for the kitchen staff to add extra meals. Please be considerate to the Club's staff and the Round Table by reserving your spot when planning to attend a monthly dinner meeting.

Thank you for attention to this request.

Sincerely,

Father Dave Holloway,

President CWRT of Kansas City

Terry Manies is Executive Director and John Hart is President of the Black Jack Battlefield Trust. The Trust is a 501(c)(3) organization that cares for the site of John Brown's battle of Black Jack. We would also like to welcome back former member of the Round Table, Brian Lawson.

Marlene Natoli said she went to the doctor on April 19th and will need knee replacement surgery. Surgery won't be until June, but her attendance at dinner meetings might be spotty, depending on how her new knee does.

Bob Macoubrie said his wife had heart surgery on April 20th. She is home now. She still has at least two months of chemotherapy, if she can keep her blood levels up. She hasn't had any chemotherapy since November, when she became quite ill and had to spend so much time in the hospital and physical therapy.

Bob and his wife have recently moved and Bob has donated a large number of his Civil War books to the Round Table. Thank you, Bob!

Don Bates sent the following e-mail on April 23rd:

Dave:

After my yearly physical and tests following, I have a large mass in the left kidney, suspicious for a renal cell carcinoma or other malignancy.

I have an appointment on Friday, May 6 with Dr. Gerald Park, who has done more cancer kidney surgeries than any doctor in the Kansas City area using his less invasive surgery by using the daVinci Robotic device. He is with my group KCUC. May 6 is for the consultation, so I'll be pushing for surgery ASAP.

Feel free to tell of the findings in the next Border Bugle.

Please add me to your prayer list.

Best wishes,

Don

Susan Keipp reported that in the past two months she has had Bronchitis, chorus competition for Sweet Adelines in Iowa, three surgeries, and completed 284 tax returns. Susan said she is literally worn out!

A Galling Fire

During the Civil War in Missouri, scouting parties in enemy territory were often conducted by a large number of Union troops. This was done to maximize the safety of the Union troops and show the "Flag" in enemy territory in a search for guerrilla camps. The following after action report describes a successful Union Reconnaissance in Force in the winter of 1862 and is located in Vol. 8 of the Official Records of the War of the Rebellion on Pages 50 - 51.

"Camp near Fayette, Mississippi January 10, 1862

[To] Brigadier General John Pope, Otterville, Missouri

General: I have the honor to report that in compliance with your order, I marched my command to Boonville and was there joined by three companies of Merrill's Horse, under Major Hunt, and at the earliest day possible crossed the Missouri River and reached camp near Fayette on the evening of the 5th instant, when I was there joined by four companies of the First Missouri, under command of Major Hubbard and one company of the 4th Ohio, commanded by Captain Foster. We proceeded at once to gather information on the enemy's movements, by sending scouts through different portions of this and adjoining counties.

On the 7th instant, reconnaissance in force was made to Glasgow, Roanoke, and the surrounding country and information was received that one Colonel Poindexter was recruiting in this and other counties and that he had his principle camp somewhere on the headquarters of Silver Creek, with a force of regularly enlisted men, 600 to 800 strong, together with an equal number of aiders and abettors of rebellion. Early on the morning of the 8th instant, we moved from camp with 500 mounted men in search of their camp and marched to Roanoke, 15 miles distant and then in the direction of Silver Creek.

When, within 4 miles of where they were reported to be, the column was halted, and the following disposition of our forces was made: to Major Hunt was assigned the command of that portion of his forces who were armed with carbines and with Major Hubbard's command and Captain Foster's company to form the advance of the column, to attack the camp, draw their fire, and reply with carbines, when the First Iowa and a portion of Merrill's Horse were to charge upon the camp mounted, if possible, and if not practicable, charge with revolver and saber on foot. To Lieutenant Dustin of Company F, First Iowa was assigned the advance guard that was supported by Lieutenant Burrow's First Missouri.

All being in readiness, the column moved forward rapidly, the advance guard driving the enemy's pickets [guards] and rushing to the entrance of the camp. The column followed soon after, dismounted, and drew the enemy's fire. They were in a strong position, being protected by ravines, thick underbrush, and timber. Their volley was promptly answered by our forces. pouring in "A GALLING FIRE." Three companies of the First Iowa and a part of Merrill's Horse were then ordered forward to charge the camp, which was promptly done. The enemy was now thrown into confusion and soon began to retreat, leaving horses and guns, together with their camp and garrison equipage. It was a complete rout, as the appearance of the camp fully attested. Two companies from our rear were ordered to cut off their retreat, but the darkness and heavy fog, together with the thick underbrush, rendered it impossible.

To avoid surprise and to be able to move all our forces forward, an order was given to destroy the camp and look up the dead and wounded. This was soon accomplished and the darkness forbidding further pursuit, the whole command was then moved to camp, 23 miles distant. The prompt action of the troops throughout is worthy of the highest praise. Lieutenant Dustin is worthy of honorable mention for his gallant conduct in leading the advance guard; also Major Hunt, of Merrill's Horse; Captains Clinton and Modell, of the First Missouri, for their gallant cool bearing during the entire action.

The loss of the enemy cannot be actually ascertained, but from the most reliable information their loss in killed and wounded cannot be less than 80 to 100.

Yours Most Obediently,

W. M. G. TORRENCE, Major, First Battalion, First Iowa Cavalry." ****

Now then, a reconnaissance in force conducted with a large body of troops, was often the best and safest way to probe into enemy territory. In this after action report, this large reconnaissance in force was successful in locating, engaging, and routing the enemy and destroying their camp. It is also worth noting that the entire engaged enemy force was not completely destroyed, as many of the guerrillas managed to escape and fight another day as the War Went On!
