A marker at 14th Street and Grand Boulevard, between the Sprint Center and The Kansas City Star's Press Pavilion, designates a historic site in the midst of an urban area. Placing markers to preserve the identity of historic sites in the Kansas City metroplex is an ongoing goal of The Native Sons and Daughters of Greater Kansas City.

WHY IS PRESERVING OUR HISTORY IMPORTANT?

Kansas City is exploding with new and vibrant activities and developments! We've become one of the best places for living, traveling and starting businesses according to many publications.

- under30ceo.com: 4th best medium city for young entrepreneurs
- Lonely Planet: 6th best travel destinations for 2014
- Business Week: 15th among "America's 50 best cities"

We know Kansas City is exceptional but now people across the nation are taking notice. Yet, while all these wonderful changes are unfolding, we must continue to preserve the legendary stories and landmarks that are the legacy of our city.

As the crossroads of America—the town where dreamers began their journeys west on the Oregon, California and Santa Fe Trails. We are the western border of the Civil War and some argue, the region where the war began. We are the stockyards, the destination for Texas cowboys herding cattle to market. We are the city where people came to party and hear the latest jazz music during prohibition. And we are the Midwest values that helped make Harry Truman the-buck-stops-here president.

These are our unique stories that helps make KC one of the best place to live in the US.

YOUR SUPPORT KEEPS OUR HISTORY ALIVE

For more than 80 years, the Native Sons and Daughters of Greater Kansas City (NSDKC) has been conserving, educating and advocating for our peerless Kansas City history.

- The NSDKC has placed more than 100 cast metal markers throughout the Kansas City area to commemorate historic sites.
- Eleven NSDKC Community Service Committees work with area historic organizations to increase public awareness of significant landmarks, museums and cemeteries.

- The NSDKC participated with local and national groups to expand the National World War One Museum at Liberty Memorial and to build the Town of Kansas pedestrian bridge and trail markers.
- Two Committees work with The State Historical Society of Missouri to keep the NSDKC collection of historic documents for the area.
- For more than 70 years the NSDKC has help preserve Union Cemetery and led the effort to reconstruct Fort Osage.

You can help the NSDKC protect Kansas City history for future generations. As a sponsor for the Outstanding Kansas Citian Gala, not only will you be preserving your legacy as a Kansas Citian but you will receive important benefits. See the sponsorship form to become a sponsor and learn how you can benefit.

The Honorable Frank White, Jr.
Outstanding Kansas Citian 2016

Frank White grew up in the shadow of Municipal Stadium then played for the Royals for 18 years. As a civic leader and Jackson County Executive, he continues to be a role model for Kansas City.

In a history of amazing events and accomplishments that transpired right here in Kansas City, Mr. White grew up in the shadow of old Municipal Stadium. As a young adult, he worked on the construction crew that built Royals Stadium, later renamed Kauffman Stadium, giving "Frank the distinction of possible being the only Major Leaguer to play in a stadium that he literally helped build."

Mr. White has a legacy that includes serving as a role model for Kansas City's youth, as a civic leader, and helping with the growth of the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum. Now in a career of public service, Mr. White continues to provide outstanding leadership as County Executive in the 21st Century.

The Jackson County Sports Authority plans, constructs, maintains and operates the Truman Sports Complex.

The Truman Sports Complex is the home of our World Series winners, the Kansas City Royals, and the Kansas City Chiefs.

Built by Jackson County and opened in fall of 1972, it was the first two stadium complex ever built. Jack Steadman of the Chiefs staff helped architect Charles Deaton design it. Originally it was to have a roof that would roll between stadiums but that design proved to be unfeasible.

Because it attracted fans from as far as Denver, the stadiums originally had AstroTurf to prevent rain-out games. When the Colorado Rockies appeared in 1994, the AstroTurf was replaced by grass in both stadiums. In 2006, Jackson County voters approved a tax increase that lead to many improvements. Kauffman Stadium was voted best stadium in the MLB for 2016.
