QUARTERLY MIND BODY & SPIRIT NEWSLETTER

Happy Summer to All!

I have been trying to write something for about a week and a half for the front page and can't seem to see any clear path to that article. I have writer's block. Everyone understands how blocks work for the most part. A block of any kind is generally something set up for the purpose of keeping something from passing through. You might come upon a road block or perhaps there is something blocking your way. But what I finally realized is blocks are actually only part of something bigger. We can "find" a block of time, or carve out a block of cake, or set up a city block. Someone can be a "chip off the old block" and one can be a block head. These are all parts of a whole.

If I could figure out what and where my block was then I could perhaps do something about it! What a concept?! I have all the power to make it happen! You see it isn't that I couldn't do anything about it but that I couldn't identify it. I realized once again I do not have to bend to what is outside of me as I hold the power to create change within and around me. Here is where I began to examine what was keeping me from moving forward. I decided that it wasn't that I couldn't write, it wasn't that I didn't have anything to convey. I figured out that my writer's block has been caused simply because the weather is phenomenal and I want to be at the lake every single minute! There it was, I didn't WANT to write. That was my block. I could, I should, and I have something to say. But my block was that a part of me wanted nothing to do with anything that was going to keep me from the lake. And that part was my block.

How easy was that?!? I took a good hard look at what to do with this block of mine. Could it be moved? Did I need help? Would I have to find a way around it or would I need to push through it? So many choices. I decided to push through because the lake was calling. And then it occurred to me that I had the article right there in my lap all along. The article was about figuring out what to do with all those blocks that present themselves to all of us every day. If we keep in mind that these temporary (yes, I said temporary) blocks, to where we want to go, get in our way, we can do something about them! They are only bits of something bigger and are manageable. They can be handled and there is ALWAYS something we can do about them.

The next time you encounter a block that has you stopped dead on your path, do something about it. Instead of sitting down and giving up, look at the block closely. Can it be moved or maybe you must climb over or under? Can you handle it on your own, or is help needed to move it? What is it a piece of? Have you been chipping at something so big, for so long, that pieces keep falling and getting in your way? Does the larger whole need looking at or is it enough to do away with one piece at a time? Even the big things can be broken down and worked around. However you choose to deal with it, deal with it! If you don't take a closer look, blocks can seem bigger than they really are and then we feel trapped. The sad thing is that many times these blocks are just before some of the biggest and best surprises in our lives happen. Some give up and some go get their picks and other gear. Don't let any blocks stop you from moving forward. EVER! Go get your gear right now and start chipping away at what lies ahead! Identifying and removing my block got my article written on time. Removing, or chipping away at your blocks today might just help you discover your life!

Now that my block is gone, it's LAKE TIME! Good luck with yours!
Take care,

Joan

STONES OF LOVE & PASSION

RHODONITE | RHODOCROSITE | ROSE QUARTZ

Rhodonite, Rhodocrosite, and Rose Quartz are three stones that are mentioned quickly when one asks the question, "What is a good stone for love?" Just like other stones that have similar qualities, they each have their own unique vibration for unique expressions of love. There is a stone for every desire in love and every stage of love. While Rose Quartz would be the best choice for compassionate, unconditional love of oneself, Rhodocrosite might be the best choice for a relationship full of fun and creativity, with a higher degree of passion. If one is looking for love that is balanced and has an element of grounding such as with mature love, then Rhodonite might be just what one is looking for.

Passion has very different definitions for many different people. Passion is often thought of in relation to sexual intimacy by some, others may find that passion within a relationship is about the sharing of one's life adventures with another, and still there are those that find that passion is about never letting go and with the proper balance in one's life a relationship can go the distance.

Rose Quartz is one of those stones that almost everyone recognizes. The "pink" quartz that is found in many places the world over would be considered the stone of empathy out of the three. It is particularly helpful with heartache or heart "break". It encourages self-love and reconciliation, with oneself and others, for pain caused in the past. Rose Quartz aids understanding when understanding is difficult. It also helps one to open their heart to the possibility of love again when one has been hurt within a relationship of any kind. Carrying Rose Quartz in one's pocket will aid in the discovery that one is enough and a relationship is not needed to feel complete; feeling complete can only come when one loves themselves. When the time comes that one is open to a partnership then having Rose Quartz in the bedroom can help with the courage to risk loving another.

Rhodonite is a "pinkish" stone with black markings that helps to balance the heart chakra, making it possible for the heart to both open and ground its energy at the same time. This slight grounding is the type of energy one feels when in a mature relationship. But this stone is no slouch in the heavy passion arena either! It is the astrological birthstone for Scorpios (and anyone who has a Scorpio in their life knows passion!). It is a stone to activate love energies and like Rose Quartz it aids in the recovery from hurt such as betrayal and abandonment. This stone's grounding energy also helps to nurture brotherhood and make one feel safe in the presence of love. Those who have high anxiety around those who they love should carry this stone to soothe those emotions. The calming energy will then help to bring balance to those relationships so they may become supportive once more. Rhodonite was derived from the Greek word for rose, "Rhodon", and the rose is known to be an expression of the emotions of love. Rhodonite was routinely given as a wedding gift in Russia with the pink color representing the lover's passion for one another and the black to represent the grounded worldly things one needs for a lengthy partnership such as loyalty, prosperity, and protection.

Rhodocrosite is like the other two pink stones in that it aids healing from loss and loneliness, heartache and betrayal. But this stone has a bit more childlike energy running through it. This creates a fun purpose. It creates spontaneous actions within the bearer and is a wonderful aid in creativity, both of new life and new dreams. Rhodocrosite is the best of the three to help with emotional scarring from incest or other abuse, especially when it occurred in childhood. It strengthens emotional expressiveness, friendship, and like all three stones it aids self-love. It creates a positive outlook on life, enhances the dream phases, and helps one feel closer to their spiritual energy.

The next time you are looking for an aid in finding love, whether it be a healing love, a mature love, or something with a little fun, you can come on in to Mind Body & Spirit and pick up a Pink Pebble and find out which one is for you and your love!

LIZ JOHNSON/ MASTER HERBALIST (Available Saturdays 7/21, 8/18, 9/8 by appointment)

Liz began her journey to herbalism and other "alternative" healing modalities in 1985. After having seen her father go through years of misdiagnosis and pain with heart disease, Liz was left questioning whether there were alternatives to his experience. This opened Liz to Traditional and Natural Healing. Along with several years of correspondence courses, etc, she apprenticed with Registered Herbalist, Matthew Wood (www.matthewwoodherbs.com). Liz continues with her education to this day, seeking out teachers, schools, and conferences to enhance her twenty years experience in the Traditional and Modern uses of herbs and other healing methods. These opportunities have included Australasian College of Herbal Studies, and with the American Academy of Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine. Liz has been in private practice since 1995. Liz does workshops and classes and also does individual consultations by appt.

MERRY MCKENZIE/ENERGY WORK ( Available most Saturdays by appointment)

$50 - whole body treatment (60 minute session) $25 - basic chakra balancing (30 minute session)

Merry allows healing energy from the Highest Source (God, Creator, etc) to flow through her--simply acting as a conduit or facilitator to deliver the healing energy to another. Depending upon preference, she can focus on specific complaint areas that may need "spot energizing," or she can provide a more general overall treatment. Merry believes that healing should be a simple, uncomplicated process & that feeling good is our natural state of being.

GUARDIAN OF THE LAKE

Many of us like to spend summertime by the water. If there is one bird everyone seems to recognize, besides the loon, it is the Great Blue Heron. Whether kayaking silently along a shoreline or sitting on a dock pondering life, the sight of a Great Blue flying overhead lifts the spirits and eases our worries. It seems everyone I have talked to about this bird lately has that same feeling. We feel peace and solitude, joy and somehow, a bit of security. I wondered why we all seem to feel this when we see this well known lake visitor?

I did a little studying and found that the Heron has been found all over the world in pictures and paintings throughout time. In ancient Egyptian mythology it was most likely the Phoenix that rose from the ashes and renewed itself every 500 years. There are legends that say the "Bennu" bird, as it was called in Ancient Egypt, was born out of the heart of Osiris, the son of Ra. And the Egyptian Book of the Dead says the Bennu bird was the Guide of the Gods to the land below. When one died the Heron would guide the soul to the land of the dead so they could rest for all eternity, unless they too decided to be born again.

No wonder we feel as if the Great Blue is trying to guide us sometimes when we are out on the lakes. And here is just another take on why we feel the peacefulness of this beautiful blue icon. In the pagan or ancient Celtic faiths the Great Blue Heron was the embodiment of the Goddess Rhiannon. The Great Blue has been called what Rhiannon would be called, "The Lady of the Lake". The Lady of the Lake guides all those who are lost and provides for those that are in need but mostly the Lady of the Lake guards the shimmering, wonderful lakes so they will be here for our kids tomorrow.

According to Ted Andrews, the Heron is a symbol of balance, able to be sure footed upon the ground and fly gracefully through the sky. They explore quietly and slowly along shorelines, waiting for opportunities. But once they have spotted what they want their swiftness in attack shows no hesitation. People with this Totem/Spirit Animal seek solitude and love to explore. Those who love nature and enjoy canoeing, etc, would highly resonate with the Heron. There is a sense of security in the Heron energy. They have the ability to evolve and become more adept at their talents so they may always be taken care of. If one chooses to accept the Heron as a spirit animal they will learn to walk into the deep waters with no fear and they will stand on their own two feet keeping themselves balanced at all times. Self determination, self reliance and guidance are the trademarks of the ever popular "lady" of the lake and spiritual guardian of the nature lover's soul, the Great Blue Heron.

Spirit of Archetype Cards

From the Author and Artist of Spirit of Archetype Cards

"Archetypes allow the greater personality that is waiting within to be expressed or brought to life."

~ Carl Jung, Archetypes and the Collective Unconscious.

The Spirit of Archetype Cards were created to help you examine how you are currently choosing to live your life. The archetypes make you aware of the personality traits that you are exhibiting and the messages you are sending to others.

As you examine your personal story, you will find an archetypal element that defines and reveals the pattern you are living, such as Victim, Hero, Artist, or Child.

Once you identify the archetypes you are expressing, you can decide if they are empowering or dis-empowering you. Then you have choice to develop a strategy to change the story you are currently living to one that will allow the greater personality within you to be brought to life.

What is an Archetype?

An archetype is an energy pattern of expression or thought. These universal thought forms or patterns are available and active from birth.

Archetypes have both an illuminated and an un-illuminated (or "shadow") aspect to its personality. The shadow archetype is an un-illuminated or unknown part of you waiting to be expressed or healed.

Out of the hundreds of archetypes studied throughout history, I selected forty-eight that offer dramatic insights to the patterns and possibilities of your life. The archetypes were artistically conceptualized by artist Dorothy Rittal-McIntyre.

Roi Solberg

I have loved art since I was a girl and have always had an eye for color and design. As a young adult, I fell in love with art deco and Maxfield Parrish with all of his intense colors and the magical tone his pictures have. Later on I discovered the fun of adding collage as it gives a lot of freedom to the design element and adds a depth that I find intriguing.

The archetype project was a magical and life-changing experience for me, in my art and my life. I worked on six archetypes at a time, creating a watercolor background, choosing letters from newspapers, and gathering images from my picture collection.

Colors, images, and inspiration came from dreams, meditations and quiet times or when I was gardening or walking. Then I would focus on one archetype as I began to search for symbols that represented the shadow and illuminated.

As I worked on each of the archetypes, I gathered a new perspective on my own life. I believe that my deep reactions added to my art, and I am proud to share it with you.
