

Your Time Has Now Come!”
A Prophetic Word for the Navajo Nation
February 2012

By Kay Winters

For the Lord would say to the Navajo Nation: “I am coming in this hour to you as your Healer. Indeed, I will close and stitch up the gaping wound of betrayal. Although as a nation you have been cast aside and left for dead in an ash heap of grief and hopelessness, I shall heal your bruised soul and broken spirit. Surely I have seen your affliction and heard your cry. As you reach for the hem of My garment, I will heal your wounds of injustice, and fill your land with My glory”, says the Lord.

For the Lord says, “I am also coming as a Man of War, to tear down the web of the “Spider Woman”, that has ensnared you. Known as “the Creator”, “Weaver of Life” and “Sacred Guardian”, she has poisoned and paralyzed you with her sorceries. For some would say the wound of injustice is more devastating than the web of deception, but they are equally destructive. However, as you apply My blood, the destroyer, the angel of death, shall be denied access to the gateways of your nation. Indeed, you shall crush the spider under your feet and remove the cobwebs that have enslaved the minds, will and emotions of My children – the Dine’.

For the Lord says, “The wounds of devastation shall no longer haunt you, for I have paid the price for your healing. Indeed, the “Long Walk” of yesterday shall no longer be to you a shadow and shroud of shame, for you shall walk upon a high place of honor and glory. What has been sown in corruption, dishonor and weakness among you, I shall raise in incorruption, glory and power - for this is your hour. For My greatness and glory shall be revealed in and through you.” For the Lord says, “Your time has now come!”
